LANDVERPERSONALINJURY

MONTH AT A GLANCE

Channel live since Aug 14, testing continues

Impression data starts on August 14 — before that date, ads had not yet cleared OpenAI's moderation (see below). Figures below cover the actual serving period, 18 of 31 days.

|-----------------------|-------------------------------------|-----------------|----------------|
| 22,266IMPRESSIONS | 92CLICKS                        | 0.41%CTR    | $945SPEND |
| $10.27CPC        | 2*CONVERSIONS(PHONE CLICKS) | $472.56CPA |                |

* What counts as a "conversion" here: the pixel feeding conversions into ChatGPT is set up with two event types — form submit and phone-number click. The 2 conversions above are phone clicks; there were no form submits this month. Phone click is used as the stand-in for a call because the pixel has no native call tracking of its own, and our Ringostat call-tracking setup can't currently be tied to it to confirm which clicks became actual calls. So a phone click here means intent to call, not a confirmed call — Ringostat shows no actual calls from this traffic source. Both events were logged on August 27 in the "Motorcycle Accidents" group.

Activity grew as testing expanded

Spend and the number of active ad groups rise week over week — this reflects new test directions being opened progressively, not organic growth of already-running ads. The final week is shorter than the others (only one day, August 31, is in this data pull) — don't read it as a decline.

What was tested and how it performed

Three parallel tests ran this month: 8 groups by case type (Car/Truck/Motorcycle, etc. — direct offer, landing on the site's homepage), several neutral / educational copy tests (What to Do After a Car Accident, Who Pays Medical Bills, Partly at Fault), and a psychological-angle test, Cell A/C/D (Test Matrix — intercepting before a settlement offer, situation specificity, "a real lawyer, not a call center").

"Partial" means at least one ad in the group is approved and serving, but not every variant in it. No group this month got impressions across all of its ads at once — that's a systemic trait of this channel for legal advertising, not a flaw in any one piece of copy.

"Legal services" category moderation

OpenAI Ads' official policy explicitly bans advertising for legal services, personal injury included. Most of the month went into finding a working format inside that constraint.

 AUG 14–17

First tests — neutral, educational tone

Before attempting direct lead-gen, we tested indirect, informational copy (What to Do After a Car Accident, Who Pays Medical Bills, Partly at Fault) on different site pages — early reconnaissance, before hitting an outright category rejection.

Direct offer to the sales landing page — rejected

Reason explicitly listed as "Legal services" category. Appeal filed with support.

 AUG 21

Appeal worked — first approval

Category opened for the account ("Landver Test 2") — the first practically confirmed precedent.

 AUG 21

Expansion to 8 case types — rejected again on upload

The same formula that had just been approved was rejected again for the new groups. A second letter went to support asking: does approval apply per-ad, or account-wide?

 AUG 21–31

The rejection turned out not to be final

Despite the formal rejection, several of these 8 groups began serving partially over the course of the month (see table above) — apparently the decision was revisited by the platform without a separate notice.

AUG 28

New test round per client brief — psychological angles (Cell A–F)

Instead of splitting by case type, the split is by funnel stage / psychological trigger (intercepting before signing an insurer's offer, "do I even need a lawyer" doubt, situation specificity, "a real lawyer, not a call center", etc.). Round one was built and uploaded — 6 ads, 5 groups (including Cell A/C/D). This moderation case was escalated to support as a separate ticket (Case Number 13883269).

SEP 1

Support claims the account is fully approved

The reply addressed both open tickets at once. The account itself didn't literally bear this out: some directions (Cell B/E/F and several case-type groups) were still not serving. Real progress, but uneven across groups, not blanket.

COMING UP

In progress for September

- ☐ Dog Bite direction — a dedicated landing page was built for this topic, and 4 ad groups (Offer Interception / Situation Specificity / Human Not Call Center / Strict Liability) are already uploaded and in moderation. Results will be in the next report.
- ☐ Check every group's status after support's claimed approval — some may still be paused from earlier rejections.
- ☐ Not enough data yet for a cost-per-lead conclusion — 2 phone-number clicks all month, with no confirmed calls in call tracking. We're continuing to gather data; a channel-performance read is due after September.
